In this edition, Altus Wong tells us about his experience of giving up something for Lent, we celebrate a special win at the Hong Kong Young Writers Awards and find out about the school's first ever Time to Talk entry.

EDITED BY CRAIG ROBERTSON (NET), ALTUS WONG KI SHUN (P5A1) AND JACK LI SHING KIT (S1)

GIVING UP

Lent is a festival before Easter when people give up something for 40 days. This year, I gave up cold drinks to help me remember the sacrifices Jesus made when he was living in the desert. Actually, it was not that difficult, and it got easier as time went on. In the future, I think I will drink fewer cold drinks than before. Next year, I will try something harder like giving up watching videos.

THE HONG KONG YOUNG WRITERS AWARDS

This March, Victor Chen and Jason Lam made the whole school proud by winning their category at the Hong Kong Young Writers Award. They were presented beautiful glass trophies and amazing goodie bags with a BTS book inside. Well done boys!

TIME TO TALK

This year our school entered its first ever team into the NET Section's Time to Talk competition. A group of students worked hard in the public speaking ECA all year before Leo Chan (P5A1) and Miu Miu Yu (P6) gave a great presentation about loving our family and loving our country. The judges praised the performance and encouraged them to enter again next year!
